VERDICTS IN TWO INQUESTS. Eppley Not to Blame for Lacey's Death and Patterson Committed Suicide. "I can only speak two words," said Gripman W. A. Eppley to the coroner's jury which yesterday was investigating the case of the fatal injuries to Wm. Lacey, of Occoquan, Va., by grip car No. 222, at the Peace Monument on Saturday and who died at the Emergency Hospital on Sunday.

"'My God! Look out!" I called; just then the car struck him." Eppley, who was permitted to be present at the hearing, had listened attentively to all that the witnesses had said and was then told by Coroner Hammett that he might make a statement if he so After being sworn Eppley made the brief statement above quoted. This closed the evidence and, after a short deliberation, the jury rendered a verdict "that the fatal affair was purely accidental and we exonerate the was parely accused a and we exhante the gripman from all blame."

Foremen Chapman, of the jury, requested Lieut, Kelly to discharge Eppley from custody at once and Lieut, Kelly did so. Eppley was immediately surrounded by his friends, of whom a number were at the station, and or whom a number were at the station, and warmly congratulated. He then left for the Navy Yard terminus of the cable line to resume his duties on the road.

The principal witnesses of the accident were Mrs. Eilen McCaffray and her daughter,

Were Mrs. Elled McCaffray, who reside in Southeast Washington. The latter was sitting in the front seat of the grip oar and her mother in the one next when the accident occurred. They saw, they said, Lacey walk directly in front of the car and heard the gripman ring we bell and call out in the most violent man-er to the man, but he walked directly on, aying no heed to the warning. An instant hydrog no heed to the warning. An instant, inter Lacery was struck.

The evidence of the ladies was corroborated by John Lindslev, of No. 1223 Sixteenth street northwest, and William Ward, of M street, near Eighth street northwest, but Henry Blochselski, of No. 233 First street southwest, had no recollection of either hearing the gripman call out to Lacey or of ringing the parameters. Dis. W. R. Hazen, E. M. Bell, and L. W.

bis w. R. Hazen, E. M. Bell, and D. W. Glazebrook, the latter of whom made the autopsy, testified that the injury received by Lacey was sufficient to cause death.

The only witnesses who testified were Samuel Day, an inmate of the Soldiers' Home, who found the body, and Deputy Coroner L. W. Gianehrook, who per-formed the autopsy. The latter said that he found enough arsenic in Patterson's stomach to have caused death. Immediately after the verdict had been ren-

HONORED IN DEATH AS IN LIFE.

Imposing Obsequies Over the Remains of the Late William J. Stephenson. The people of Washington paid high honor o the memory of William J. Stephenson at his funeral vesterday afternoon. At his residence, Eleventh and C streets southwest, where the services began at 3 p. m., the streets were filled with groups of sympathetic friends and neighbors. Vehicles occupied more than half a block in every direction, while on C street the line of carriages in waiting stretched to Thirteenth. The Knights Templar and other Masonic bodies were drawn up on Eleventh street toward B. Nearly 200 men were in attendance. The exercises were conducted by the Rev. Ross Fishburn, of whose congregation the deceased was a member. He was assisted by Rev. Wm. H. Gottwald a neighbor and a per sonal friend of the family, and by officers of the Missonic organizations. The details of the funeral were in charge of Joseph Gaw-

the innertaker.

The pall-bearers were: Noble D. Larner and Isaac E. Johnson, from the Grand Lodge of Masons; William S. Yeatman and Robert Ball, from Dawson Lodge, No. 16, and W. H. Orcutt, E. G. Davis, and Joseph Brumett, of Weatherman Commandery, No. 1. Knights Washington Commandery, No. 1, Knights Templar. The Washington Boyal Arch Chapter, No. 2, the boards of directors of the Metropolitan and of the Columbia Street Hall-way Companies and coal exchange were also represented as organizations, as Mr. Stephenson was a member of each.

The reception rooms of the residence were filled with sorrowing relatives and friends when the Rev. Mr. Fishburn began the services with prayer. Following the prayer at once was Mr. Fishburn's address, in which feelingly referred to his first meeting with Mr. Stephenson upon his taking charge of the pastorate two years ago. He said God sends among men as His messengers some who are giants in the doing of good works, and he whom they mourned had been one of these. In strong terms he drew the picture of his usefulness in business and churc cles, of a generous, far-reaching friendship and of a blessed home circle. The hymn "Abide with Me" was then sung by Miss Mattie Gray, and Mr. Gottwald foilowed with deeply solemn remarks, in which he admonished all to be prepared for the summons of death even as their friend had en. After Mr. Gottwald's address the Masons drawn up on the street, filed through the room where the corpse lay and a group of Knights Templar remained to perform the last offices of their order. Their prelate, Dr. McFariand, read the ritual. When he had finished the remains were borne to the hearse and the loan processive bearen the read and the long procession began the sad march to Rock Creek Cemetery, where the cal selections were rendered by the Mount Vernon Lodge male quartet.

Supreme Representative Ogden H. Feathers, of Wissonsin, delivered the first address.

"He was great in all that makes true manhood," said the speaker; "proud, but not arrogant, and with all the tender grace of true manhood. The grave has closed upon him and all Wisconsin is in tears. In him and all wisconsin is in tears. In the bosom of the great State, among the peo-ple who loved him and whom he loved he has left a precious memory." Supreme Representative Hon. Philip T. Caldwell was the next speaker. Among other things he said: "The awful silence and gloom things he said: "The awful silence and gloom that death has brought to this body will find no expression in words this day. George B. Shaw feil a victim to the only fee he could not conquer. His chair clad in mourning garb is empty. Amid the perfume of flowers we may see his form standing erect as if through his veins there flowed the blood of a king. True genius lives two lives. We know the man in this life and his deeds redound to all subsequent ages. In the midst of a successful, busy career, George B. Shaw is taken from us. His was a noble character and life, shining out as a precious legacy to and life, shining out as a precious legacy to his friends and his country. These are his gifts to us. He was the acknowledged leader of this body and his life a poem to his fellows.

'His loss can never be supplied."

Hon. J. A. Hinsey, president of the board of control of the endowment rank, followed Mr. Caldwell. For more than eighteen years President Hinsey was associated with Mr. Shaw. He knew him well in the varying control of the beginning that the control of the scenes of life, in business, in politics, in Pyth-ian halls, in conference as well as in conflicts, In all he was a knightly knight an 1 a manly man... He and I were associated in the grand lodge of Wisconsin," said the speaker, "I was his colaborer in the cause of friendship, charity and benevolence. He was a faithful servant of the grand lodge, and worked un-ceaseingly for its promotion and betterment. He was the noblest Roman of them all, and will be mourned, not only in Wisconsin, but where ever Pythianism is established."

MAN OF NOBLE PRINCIPLES. "No language can express the sorrow l feel for the death of our departed brother," said Supreme Representative Burrows, of Illinois, "Although I knew him only a few years, nois. "Although I knew him only a few years, he was one of my best friends. 'To know him was to love him.' He possessed those attributes of manhood which drew people to him and made him their friend on first acquaintance. He was a man of noble principles, generous impuises and open-hearted hospitality. He was one who always administered justice when he had the power and was loyal to the tenets and principles of Pythianism. Let us emulate his virtues and reverence his memory." Connie Mack yesterday succeeded A. C. Buckenburger as manager of the Pittsburg

Gen. James R. Carnahan, commander-inchef of the uniform rank, briefly but elequently eulogized the late supreme chancellor. "His was a life of active service in the cause of Pythianism," said the general, "During my long acquaintance with him I never knew an unkind word to pass his lips. He was charitable to all, and his loss will be mourned by half a million Knights of Pythias."

Supreme Chancellor Blackwell was visibly affected by his predecessor's death. "He was an ideal Knight of Pythias," said Mr. Black-notice

SEEN ACROSS POOTLIGHTS.

"The Passing Show," which was begun for the week at Albaugh's last night, is the most amusing and most generous variety show in its attractions that has been seen in Washington for some time. Any attempt to enumerate eyen the main features of the performance would be inadequate. One must see to appreciate, and appreciation means a good even-ng's amusement.

The Passing Show' is a topical extrava-"The Passing Show" is a topleal extrava-ganza with a story of its own, permeated with satirical hits on the plays which have been given in New York during the past two or three years. To thoroughly appreciate all the keen thrusts one must be in close touch with the metropolitan stage. But there is enough outside of this to thoroughly interest avery one. The vandeville enterthinment of nine numbers with little Agnes Sherwood's cuts in the following Richards in its double lee dance; the Casino pickaninoses; Charley And Increase your day Boss in his splendid imitation of Bobby Gaylors: Lucy Daly's songs: John Henshaw in his original parts and Gus Pixley as a tramp are all captivating. "Round the Operas in Twenty Minutes," with its selected opera airs from "Tannhaeuser," "Faust," "Lohengrin," etc., is certainly original and in the seens from "I Pagliacei," thoroughly piquant and refreshire.
